NARRATIVE:

On 7/17/2018 at approx. 4:13 PM, PBSO Road Patrol deputies responded to [REDACTED] in unincorporated West Palm Beach, FL, 33417. The complainant, Sonya Booker, had notified 911, reference a two-month old infant who had suffered a drowning incident. While deputies and Palm Beach County Fire Rescue (PBCFR) personnel were enroute, the complainant informed communications that the infant was breathing again. The infant victim, [REDACTED] was subsequently transported to St. Mary's Medical Center by PBCFR. PBSO Deputy Soler was the primary deputy on scene, and identified the apartment as rented by defendant Geneva Perez and her family. Later that evening, I responded to the incident location. I conducted a sworn, digitally recorded interview with the defendant, Geneva Perez.

At the beginning of our interview, I informed Geneva that she was free to tell [me] to leave her apartment at her discretion. Geneva told me that she normally babysits her two children, as well as [REDACTED] and a fourth child. Geneva said she babysits [REDACTED] and the other child approx. three times a week, depending on scheduling needs. Geneva babysits to contribute towards bills, as she doesn't have another job. Geneva said she does not have a daycare facility license.

Geneva said on 7/17/2018 while babysitting [REDACTED] he was especially fussy; he didn't want a bottle, didn't want to lie down, etc... Geneva said historically, giving [REDACTED] a bath calms him down instantly. Geneva said she put [REDACTED] in a mesh, infant baby-support bather, which is kept in the bathtub. Geneva said she turned on the tub faucet, and was, "letting water run to soothe [REDACTED]. In the tub, [REDACTED] head was facing the running faucet, but it was not underneath it; Geneva said [REDACTED] was not getting wet while the faucet was running. Geneva said she ensured that the bathtub drain was turned open, so the water would continuously drain. Geneva then left the bathroom with the bathtub faucet still running, and went to the kitchen; the other children were playing in the living room.

In the kitchen, Geneva prepared dinner, and cleaned a moldy coffee pot. Geneva estimated she was in the kitchen for approx. five minutes when she realized she hadn't heard any noises from [REDACTED]. Geneva went to the bathroom to check on [REDACTED] and observed that the bathtub had stopped draining, and was now highly filled with water. Geneva observed that the water level had caused [REDACTED] to float out of the bath. [REDACTED] was now floating in the water, face-up. [REDACTED] head was still pointed towards the running water, but was not underneath it. Geneva immediately grabbed [REDACTED] from the bathtub. Geneva said, [REDACTED] lips were blue... that's the first thing I remember... and his eyes were open..." Geneva said she didn't check to see if [REDACTED] was breathing, but immediately started performing back-blows on [REDACTED]. Geneva then ran outside to her next door neighbor's apartment, and banged on the front door; upon her answer, Geneva told her neighbor, complainant, Sonya Booker, to notify 911.

Geneva continued to perform back-blows on [REDACTED] in varying positions. Geneva and her neighbor then returned to Geneva's apartment, to check on the other children there. Geneva then turned off the bathtub water supply, which was now causing water to overflow on to the floor. At a certain point, Geneva's neighbor observed that [REDACTED] was breathing, although in a "raspy" manner. PBCFR arrived, and Geneva transferred [REDACTED] in to their custody.

Geneva said she took a CPR class when she was sixteen-years-old, and reviews CPR with her step-father yearly. I asked Geneva about the blood I [earlier] observed around [REDACTED] mouth. Geneva said she noticed it too, and theorized [REDACTED] may have been injured when performing back-blows. Geneva said she never performed emergency breathing on [REDACTED] however. Geneva said she never observed [REDACTED] vomit water, but portions of her pants were very wet; this led her to believe he had done so when he was face-down receiving back-blows from her. Geneva was positive the bathtub drain had been left open, and was unsure how it became closed. Geneva didn't think that [REDACTED] was able to knock it closed; nor did she think the infant baby-support bathier knocked it closed either.

From the CPT Hospital Medical Evaluation Report, dated 8/2/2018, completed by Dr. William Rosenstein (# OS6379), D.O., C.A.P., F.A.A.P., the following was copied and pasted, verbatim:

NARRATIVE CONTINUATION

"CONCLUSION: Positive for Neglect: There are allegations of physical abuse and neglect with respect to 2 month old child [REDACTED] by alleged perpetrator (AP) and babysitter Ms. Geneva Perez resulting in the child almost drowning in the bathtub.

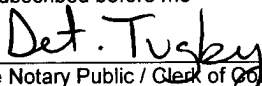

The babysitter stated she decided to soothe the child in a way she use to sooth her children by placing the child in an empty baby tub and then placing the baby tub in a full size bath tub. She said she would then turn on the water and let it run since the sound of running water is soothing. She said she made sure the drain was up so the water would drain around the child. She said she left the bathroom to clean out her coffee pot. She said she ran water through the coffee pot system and also took food out of the oven before returning to check on the child. Subsequent history revealed that when the babysitter returned, the baby was floating face down in the tub which was overflowing. Leaving an infant unattended in a bathtub constitutes neglect. It is likely that the time to fill the bathtub with water entails an inappropriate amount of time away from the infant in the tub.

The mother informed me that the babysitter worked for them for about one month, since 6/12/18, 3-4 times a week. The mother stated that the babysitter left her a message on facebook "to go to the hospital" with after the baby was transported due to the near drowning incident. The mother stated that the babysitter performed some sort of CPR by hitting the child on the back."

Based on the aforementioned investigation, I found that Geneva Perez failed to provide [REDACTED] with the necessary care and supervision necessary to maintain [REDACTED] physical health, to wit: Geneva was the sole caregiver for [REDACTED] while babysitting him on 7/17/2018. Geneva left [REDACTED] unattended in a bathtub, with the water running; she then left the bathroom to complete chores in the kitchen. Per the defendant, she found [REDACTED] floating and unresponsive in the bathtub several minutes later. Per [REDACTED] St. Mary's Medical Center medical records, he required hospitalization from 7/17/2018 to 7/27/2018, and spent time in the Pediatric Intensive Care Unit during his stay. [REDACTED] required treatment for diagnoses including, but limited to tachypnea, aspiration pneumonia, and bilateral pneumothoraces (collapsed lung) [REDACTED] also had to endure intubation for worsening respiratory distress, a [nasoduodenal] (via nose) feeding tube, and the placement of a right femoral line for IV access.

Therefore, I find probable cause to charge Geneva Perez with one count of Neglect of a Child with Great Bodily Harm, in violation of F.S.S. 827.03(2)(b).
