On October 14th 2016, at 1800 hours, I responded to 3513 Pine Haven Circle. I met with Denise Morss in reference to a possible violation of a Palm Beach County Court issued domestic violence injunction. Morss advised that she was the protected subject of the injunction issued against her ex-boyfriend, Nicholas Colavecchio. The order was issued by 15th Judicial Circuit Judge Jessica Ticktin on September 30th 2016. The case number is 50-2016-DR-009412-XXXX-SB. Morss told me that the judge told both parties that the injunction would be permanent until further notice. A temporary injunction had been issued prior to this one and it had already expired. It should be noted that Morss showed me the entire court document that she received from the judge. There is no mention of an expiration date for the injunction. One of the conditions of the injunction reads as follows: "Unless otherwise provided herein, Respondent shall have no contact with the Petitioner. Respondent shall not directly or indirectly contact Petitioner in person, by email, fax, telephone, through another person, or in any other manner". Morss called for police assistance after receiving a series of Instagram messages from Colavecchio's Instagram account ("nickcolavec74"). The first series of messages started on October 9th 2016 at 10:53pm. "nickcolavec74" stated the following: "I need to talk! Very important. Please please (sic) I am Zero threat I swear on uncle John casala's soul (sic) You know it 5 mins I need it bad please. Do you miss me at All? Can we talk $$$. Can we figure out a plan for $. Hi". Finally on October 11th 2016 at 7:10am, "nickcolavec74" stated the following: "Please go visit your parents today. Did you go to cemetery". Morss told me that the messages sent to her related to things only she and Colavecchio

are privy to. Morss also told me that the mention of her parents and the cemetery were in reference to her deceased parents. It should be noted that Morss received these messages while in the City of Boca Raton at her residence (3513 Pine Haven Circle). Morss did visit the cemetery and located a handwritten note on the gravesite. She is certain that the note is from Colavecchio as it again makes reference to things that only she and him are privy to, including an apology to her parents from the writer for treating her poorly. A copy of the note and copies of the Instagram messages were placed into evidence at the Boca Raton Police Department. I spoke with Colavecchio via telephone. I asked him if he was aware of the court ordered injunction. He told me that he was issued the injunction. I then asked him if he was aware of the conditions of the injunction, to include no contact with Morss. Colavecchio told me that he was aware. I then asked him if he had attempted to contact Morss and he stated "no". I asked Colavecchio if his Instagram tag was "nickcolavec74", and he stated "yes". I then asked Colavecchio to explain why there were numerous messages to Morss` Instagram account from his. Colavecchio told me that it must have been a misunderstanding and that possibly his 14 year old daughter may have gained access to the account and sent the messages. I asked Colavecchio if it seemed odd that his daughter would be messaging Morss about personal financial matters, and he told me that she had been subjected to more information than she should have while he and Morss had been dating. Colavecchio then told me that he had no interest in contacting Morss. Subsequent to several records check through Boca Raton Police Dispatch, no current court ordered injunction was displayed in PALMS, FCIC, or NCIC. Morss was certain that the injunction is still valid. I informed her that I would follow-up on the status with the Court. On October 25th 2016, I contacted the Palm Beach County Clerk of Courts Domestic Violence Division. I spoke with Clerk Yvonne who was able to verify that the injunction was valid. Yvonne transferred me to the Palm Beach County Jail Records Division, where I spoke with Pat who also confirmed the injunction. On October 28th 2016, I followed up with Morss on the status of the investigation at her residence. At that time Morss was visibly upset almost to the point of crying. I told her that I confirmed the validity of the injunction with the Courts and Jail. Morss then explained to me that Colavecchio has continued to contact her and her daughter. She told me that she wanted the contact to stop as per the orders of the injunction. Morss showed me pictures of her that Colavecchio had posted on his Instagram account. Additionally, Colavecchio had sent numerous messages to Morss` daughter in an effort to make contact with Morss. She also advised that he had called her from a blocked phone number on numerous occasions. Morss then played for me four separate voicemails that she had received from Colavechio. The following are the length and times that the messages were left: 10/20/16 at 10:47pm for 23 seconds, 10/21/16 at 12:42pm for 11 seconds,

10/24/16 at 2:50pm for 10 seconds, and 10/26/16 at 9:06pm for 4 seconds. Morss advised that she recognized the caller's voice as Colavecchio. She additionally explained that the contact of the messages were things only Colavecchio were privy to. I collected the messages on an agency issued audio recorder. I submitted the audio and printouts of the Instagram messages into evidence at the Boca Raton Police Department. It should be noted that Morss had received the voicemails at her home while in the City of Boca Raton (3513 Pine Haven Circle).

On October 31st 2016, I made contact with Colavecchio via telephone. I attempted to set up a consensual meeting but he was unavailable on that day. Colavecchio told me that he could come to the Police Department to meet with me on November 2nd 2016.

On November 2nd 2016, I met with Colavecchio inside of the Boca Raton Police Department at approximately 1720 hours. The meeting was held in a private interview room just beyond the front desk. Also present during the interview was Officer Alvarez (#769). The interview was tape recorded and a copy was submitted into evidence. It should be noted that the door to the room was open. Neither Officer Alvarez nor I were impeding the exit from the room. I told Colavecchio on two occasions that he was there on his own accord and free to leave at any time. Colavecchio told me that he understood and we began the interview. I asked Colavecchio about the nature of his relationship with Morss. He advised that they had dated for approximately 1 1/2 years before ending the relationship in late August. He told me that they maintained contact after the break-up and prior to the issuance of the injunction. Colavecchio then explained that he had sent Morss two photographs via email of her daughter smoking what appeared to be marijuana. Colavecchio said that Morss became enraged and then filed a police report against him for alleged battery. This report then led to the issuance of the Domestic Violence Injunction on September 30th. Colavecchio told me that he had been served the injunction and was aware of the conditions to include, no contact with Morss. I asked Colavecchio if he has had any contact with Morss since the date of the injunction, and he said no. Colavecchio then advised that Morss had called him several weeks ago about a civil matter involving repayment of money owed to her by him. He said that he did not initiate that call. It should be noted that Colavecchio did not have any evidence to show that Morss had contacted him.

Colavecchio repeatedly told me that he had not initiated contact with Morss or through a third party since the injunction. I then showed him copies of the Instagram messages received by Morss. I asked him to explain these messages and Colavecchio began fumbling his words. He discontinued eye contact with me and began fidgeting in his seat. He started to tell me that his daughter had sent the messages, but I showed him more messages. Colavecchio then confessed that he had sent the messages to Morss. He stated that he had sent the messages to her in order to fulfill the civil obligation of repaying her money. Colavecchio also advised that his attempts at contacting Morss were never malicious. At 1744 hours, I read Colavecchio his Constitutional Rights from an

I explained to him that he was no longer free to leave and that I had several more questions for him. I then asked Colavecchio about the voicemails left on Morss' phone. He told me that he had left the messages and was attempting to contact her about the same civil matter. I explained to Colavecchio once again that the injunction barred any contact with Morss, malicious or not, and Colavecchio told me that he understood. Subsequent to a records check through dispatch, it was confirmed that the injunction was valid under case # DR16-9412SB. The service date was 09/30/16 and it is expires on 09/30/17. At 1757 hours, I placed Nicholas Colavecchio under arrest for Violation of Court Ordered Domestic Violence Injunction, under Florida State Statute 741.31(4A1). Colavecchio had directly and indirectly attempted to contact Morss via telephone, email, social media, and through third party. Colavecchio was processed at the Boca Raton Police Department before being delivered to the Palm Beach County Jail for final disposition.
